Mobile Application
UI UX Case Study

01 Project Overview

Welcome to MyGameHealth, the ultimate mobile application featuring a plethora of games, all within a single platform, and boasting not just one, but two distinct interfaces to cater to both players and coaches.

- Player's Interface
  Players can buy, book lessons, download tutorials, get training evaluations, chat with the coaches and friends.
- Coach's Interface
  The coach can communicate with their students and grow their business.

Challenges
Finding coaches, lessons, and tutorials for many sports in one application.

Finding an application that helps coaches to manage all bookings and classes in one place.

Objective
Crafting an application that facilitates the growth of both players and coaches, also helping them to grow their sports community and find a lot of features like hopping on trendy challenges, chatting with each other.

Solution
Helping players to easily find coaches for any games.

Helping coaches manage their classes and offers.

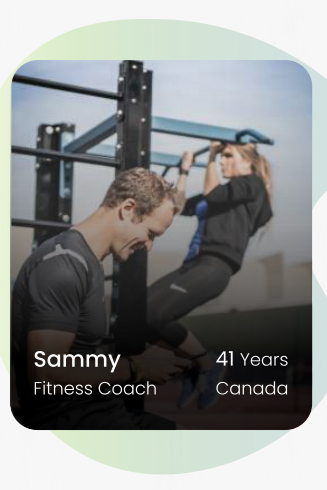
02 User Persona

Ahmed 30 Years
Football Player UAE

Introducing Ahmed,
Meet Ahmed, a 30-year-old football enthusiast residing in the UAE. With a passion for football, Ahmed dedicates himself to the sport by engaging in three weekly football sessions. Despite his commitment, he has yet to attain the desired level of proficiency. Determined to progress, Ahmed turned to the internet in search of professional football coaches in his vicinity. While he consistently came across potential coaches, he faced challenges in actually reaching out to them.

Challenge
Not being able to locate professional football coaches nearby him. Even when he found one, he wasn't able to get enough information about their certifications and credentials..

Target
To find a single application that seamlessly connects him with professional football coaches to book classes, find tutorials, and online evaluations.



Sammy 41 Years
Fitness Coach Canada

Introducing Sammy,
Meet Sammy, a dedicated 41-year-old fitness coach. Sammy effectively utilizes social media as a platform to promote his services. However, he faces a significant challenge – the absence of a streamlined method to organize and manage appointments with his clients.

Challenge
Not being able to find his students and organizing his appointments with them easily. He also faces challenges in organizing his videos and tutorials and selling courses.

Target
To be able to find students and marketing for his training sessions. He also aims to grow his community to get to know other coaches and players.
